

Linda D. O'Boyle, Ed.D., RN, CNE
"Making the Voices of Nurses Heard in the Political Arena"

Dr. O'Boyle is a 1978 graduate of Atlantic Christian College (Barton College). She completed a M.S.N in Family Health Nursing from Clemson University in 1981 and an Ed.D. in Professional Continuing Education from North Carolina State University in 1995. She holds national certification as a Certified Nurse Educator and a Certified Hospice and Palliative Nurse.

She has worked in home health, hospice, labor and delivery, postpartum, newborn nursery, intensive care, pediatrics, medical-surgical nursing. She has been the Director of Quality Management for Home Health and Hospice at Pitt County Memorial Hospital as well as Manager of Home Care and Hospice at Wilson Medical Center. She currently is the Director of the RN-BSN program at Barton College. She has previously taught at Clemson University, East Carolina University, Sumter Area Technical College and Pitt Community College.